PORT JEROME IN THAW FIGHT

NEW YORK REVIEWS BATTLE

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 17.—William Travers Jerome, Harry K. Thaw's relentless Nemesis, who has sworn to "get Thaw" if it takes him a lifetime, today has back of him in the fight Attorney-General Carmody and the New York Legislature.

"ALDRICH WITHOUT AUTHORITY"
In Carmody's report, received by the Legislature, the Attorney-General gives his views in support of the contention that Judge Aldrich is without legal authority to entertain the proceedings instituted to prevent Thaw's return to New York.

He holds that the only reasonable question for Judge Aldrich is whether or not the extradition papers signed by Governor Folger of New Hampshire are regular and in proper order. Carmody's contention is that the Federal authorities cannot legally go into the question of Thaw's mental condition.

"ENTITLED TO THAW"
He claims New York state is entitled to the custody of Thaw under the United States Constitution. The Attorney-General says:

"Thaw was originally confined in Matteawan, after being acquitted by a jury under a charge of murder upon the ground of insanity. This defense was interposed by himself. This was proved at the solicitation of his friends, upon the private records of his family, upon the testimony of experts produced by himself. In four subsequent applications for writs of habeas corpus in the Supreme Court of the State, Thaw has been refused. He was then committed to the custody of his friends, his lawyers and his experts in his behalf to shield him from murder."

"In each of the four cases, the matter was again thoroughly and completely examined. All that friendly experts could do for him, all that his great financial resources could accomplish, was done to reverse this judgment."

"These efforts were met by all the resources of the State and no effort was spared on either side in these four separate applications to have the question of Thaw's mental condition through."

"THAW SANITY SETTLED."
"The matter therefore of Thaw's condition has been thoroughly examined five times and five times adjudicated against him. The effect of the adjudication is to establish, in mental condition, that is, in a sane condition, that will grow wiser instead of better, that may be deported indefinitely and may at any time respond to excitement and result in the commission of crime, as, indeed, it did result in this case in the crime of murder."

"Since Thaw's escape in the various jurisdictions in which his case has been heard, this department has persistently urged these views, being guided, not with a desire to persecute or oppress Thaw, but wholly to vindicate the demands of justice."

"I cannot but feel that the delay in this case has been occasioned somewhat by a very considerable public sentiment based upon sympathy for Thaw and hostility to the demands of the State in making what in such quarters is held to be an unprecedented and unwarranted demand. That sentiment has been upon a total misunderstanding of the facts, or a total incapacity to give them their proper meaning."

"If Thaw was not, at the time he committed the murder, a paranoiac he should have paid the penalty which our laws exact for murder. If he was a paranoiac, he was properly exempted from the crime of murder and properly incarcerated as a dangerous to society."

MRS. MARY A. SULLIVAN.

FIRST STEP TO STOP THE TANGO BY STATE LAW

The first step to prohibit in Massachusetts the dancing of the tango and other modern dances was taken today by Representative Lewis H. Sullivan of Ward 28. He filed a bill in the Legislature which would make it punishable by a fine of $50 and for the second offense, by imprisonment for six months in jail, to dance these dances.

Tango, Argentine, chicken skin, flamenco, and all other dances not conducive to propriety are included. The bill makes the chief of police in each city and town in the Commonwealth the enforcing officer of the proposed new law.

Score in Peril from Gas Leak

One woman was overcome and more than a score of persons narrowly escaped suffocation, early today, when gas, escaping from a main in the street, worked into the cellar and filled the tenement house at Nos. 226 and 225 Harrison avenue, South End.

Mrs. Sarah Feltus, forty-eight, was found unconscious in a room on the third floor of No. 225 Harrison avenue, and was taken to City Hospital. Sergeant McCloskey and a squad of police from the East Boston Street Station saved the others.

Death Sentence for Slayer Hope

FRANKFORD-ON-THE-MAIN, Germany, Jan. 17.—A sentence of death was today passed upon Carl Hoff, fencing master and druggist, who was found guilty of poisoning four wives. Hoff's four children came to grief by his wiles, all of whom were childless.

Two Badly Hurt in Lynn Runaway

FRANKFORD, a Lynn member, is 40 days at the Lynn City Hospital as a result of being struck by a pair of runaway horses attached to a team while he was crossing Bridge street, Lynn. The driver, George Fairbanks, had taken a dangerous turn to society."

MANY INJURED IN DESPERATE FLIGHT FROM BROCKTON FIRE

Investigation into the death of Mrs. Mary A. Sullivan of East Boston at the Cranston Colony of the Worcester Insane Hospital was handled today before Dr. Charles E. Thompson, secretary and executive officer of the State Board of Insanity, admitted there seemed to be a "reasonable suspicion" of foul play.

Reports of bruises and other marks on the body of Mrs. Sullivan indicate a shocking condition. William Conley, brother of the dead woman, says that Melvin Examiner George B. Magrath remarked, after preliminary examination:

"I guess she was beaten all right from the looks of things." Mr. Conley also quoted Dr. L. P. Wentworth, assistant to Dr. Thompson, who was detailed from the State Board of Insanity to make investigation, as saying:

"We must try to put a stop to this insanity in some way. Eugene F. Hart, assistant, who was asked in preparing the body of Mrs. Sullivan for burial, says:

"The body was really in pretty bad condition. I would say that the woman had been badly hurt in a number of places."

APPEALS TO PUBLIC

Miss Catherine Kelly, sister of Mrs. Sullivan, denounced the case as an "outrage" and appeals to the people to make general protest to Governor Walsh against such conditions.

Secretary Thompson of the Insanity Board said that Mrs. Sullivan had general parents and that the hospital authorities reported that she was found dead. The hospital authorities knew of no brutality, said Secretary Thompson.

Mrs. Sullivan died last Tuesday. The relatives were notified Wednesday.

In dispatches today from Washington Mayor-elect Curley denounced his proposed sale of the Public Garden, which has created such a furore throughout Greater Boston. The Mayor-elect said:

"I am glad I offered this suggestion. I have found out the real feeling of Mayor Fitzgerald toward me. Now that I have found it out, I am satisfied."

The Mayor-elect refers, it is understood, to the following statement which Mayor Fitzgerald gave to the AMERICAN Thursday afternoon, scoring his "successor-elect" for thinking of selling the Public Garden.

"Among the Mayor's gentle comments were such as these: 'Why not sell the Common, too?' 'If Mr. Curley would drop around to City Hall now and then he might be able to secure information which would prevent him from making such statements.'"

IS NOW SATISFIED

The Mayor gave the Mayor-elect's Public Garden proposition about a column and one-half of "cagney" comment.

The news from Washington arrived while the "big" men were discussing with their horse-power interest the topic of the Mayor's proposed sale of the Public Garden. It was said that the Mayor's proposition was to be taken up by the Boston Finance Commission.

It is perfectly possible, Chairman John A. Sullivan's term is ended. Governor Walsh is being urged to appoint Mayor Fitzgerald to his chairmanship.

Four secret indictments were returned today by the Suffolk Grand Jury in its investigation of the nomination frame on the papers of Mayor-elect Curley and Congressman Kenny. These indictments were found following a lengthy investigation by the police and Grand Jury.

Several arrests are expected today. Indictment warrants have been issued and placed in the hands of the police for service.

Nearly 500 men appeared before the Grand Jury to give testimony as to the legality of their names appearing as jurors on the papers of the two candidates. Judging from the reports of the police, who made a house to house canvass to ascertain the facts it is believed that some of the names appearing as jurors on the papers questioned were legal.

It is claimed that several justices of the peace and a notary public had attended on nomination papers the persons appearing as jurors had made oath to the fact that the just in question was legal. It has been reported that one notary public whose name appeared prominently in connection with the frauds has left the city.

Both candidates had charged that the others papers were not legal, as did not contain legal facts. Each side retained the advice of attorneys. An examination of all the papers filed with the election commission was made. A handwriting expert was also engaged. The charges were heard by the Suffolk Superior Court, Judge William C. Pross, a local notary public, who was claimed had attested that he had taken the juror on many of the Kenny papers, when called before the Grand Jury, refused to testify, giving as a reason that it might tend to incriminate him.

Chief Justice Foster, chairman of the commission, then called the matter over to his assistant, Daniel V. Atwood, who was in charge of the investigation. Both the District Attorney and Mr. Atwood spent many days probing the case.

Dissolve New Haven Bond Syndicate

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—At the result of the Supreme Court of New York's ruling against the New Haven Bond Syndicate, a $1,000,000 bond issue of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., which had formed a syndicate to underwrite the issue, today announced that the syndicate was dissolved. Immediately afterward the New York Stock Exchange of Bonds ruled that all contracts made concerning this bond issue were null and void.

Senator Tillman Shows Improvement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The condition of Benjamin Tillman of South Carolina, who is suffering from erysipelas, was improved today according to his physicians. The doctors do not fear the outcome, although they say the Senator's general condition following his recent attack of paralysis was not satisfactory.

Lord Strathcona Is Seriously Ill

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Lord Strathcona, the high commissioner for Canada, is seriously ill from a catarrh of the throat and his condition today gave anxiety to his friends. On account of the advanced age of the patient and fear over the death of his wife, it is widely believed he will not survive.

Special Torpedo Boats for the Gulf

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Construction of eight torpedo boats to be used exclusively in guarding the gulf coast of the United States is provided in a bill introduced in the House today by Representative Hard of Texas. It provides an appropriation of $4,000,000, one-half of which is to be immediately available.

Money Hid in Stove Goes Up in Smoke

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 17.—"Forget about the hot pot hidden in the stove," says the Albany Herald, "and stop for safekeeping. Mrs. George W. Smith hid a fire. Several hundred dollars are remembered the money. A hot heap of ashes represented the result."

By FREDERICK JOHNS.
"La Bohème," with Lucie Arnott and Constantine in the leading roles, held the boards at the opera last night. In many respects it was a delightful performance.

Puccini, if he lives to be a hundred, can never equal this little opera, and it is doubtful if there is in all the repertory a work so human, and so close to the heart. Despite the dreadful tragedies that are enacted on the opera stage the pieces that actually move an audience to tears are very few, and "Bohème" is one of them. The love of Mimi and Rodolfo means something to everyone. It calls for little thinking of one's own existence.

In the past we have had magnificent performances of such music. But the time has come when it is associated with music of this kind. His voice contained a sexy and fascinating beauty, which was best heard in his "Bohème" and "The Bohemians." "Bohème" it was a disappointment when he returned to apparent poor form several weeks ago, but that was not the case. He had been over-exercised and had lost his voice. He demonstrated that performance alone was responsible for his singing in "Aida." It was noticeable last night that he was singing in a more relaxed, but still of his voice, but not his. He restrained it, converted it, and then hurled it forth at the boiling places with tremendous force. It was absolutely brilliant.

cellist, himself, was applauded for his superb playing.

Ildebraro Berti, the beautiful young Italian from the Metropolitan Opera, owns one of the most lovely voices in the world. His style is exquisite in quality and has the compelling force of a dramatic soprano. Last night she did not sing as well as we have heard her in this part, but she was still lovely. Her sister is a sweet and pathetic little Mimi.

Henri Texier has found in Marcello a role where his light and agile voice can be to his advantage. His sister is admirable. Beriza, Mardones, Fulcini, Tavecchia and the other members of the cast were in good form. On the whole, the performance, Morazzoni conducted.

Finds Symphony Program Tiring

There were only two numbers upon yesterday's Symphony program, Bruckner's Ninth Symphony and the Brahms Piano Concerto, played by Harold Bauer. The pompous emptiness of Brahms and the meaty but incoherent Bruckner were perhaps properly bracketed, for they were rivals and enemies in the eighties in Vienna, but it was really a little hard upon the Bruckner's Ninth Symphony is noted chiefly for its length. Its themes are sometimes attractive, and their treatment occasionally interesting, but most of the time you are bored. He did not live long enough to write a fourth movement, but it is long enough.

In the Brahms Concerto the marvelous artistry of Harold Bauer made enduring—long and uninspired passages lightened now and then by a bright theme or clever harmonies.

GAINS 22 POUNDS IN 23 DAYS

"I was all run down in the very bottom," writes K. Garrison. "I had to quit work. I was weak. Now thanks to Nargol I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds in 22 days." "Nargol has put 19 pounds on me in 14 days," states W. D. Roberts. "It has made me sleep well, enjoy what I ate and enabled me to work with interest and pleasure."

A Plump, Strong, Robust Body

"Before I look Sargol people called me a baby, but now my name has changed. My whole life is different, my face is plump and full, my body is stout. Have gained 15 lbs., and am gaining yet. I look like a new man," declared another gentleman who had just finished the 33-day course.

"Would you, too, like to quickly put on from 15 to 30 lbs. of good, solid, healthy "stay there" flesh, fat and muscular tissue between your skin and bones?"

"Let us send you free a pack of Sargol and prove what it can do for you."

How a Little "Want Ad" Started The $25,000,000 Keokuk Dam

A few months ago, a multitude of people witnessed the dedication of what is in many respects the master engineering achievement of all ages—the great dam across the Mississippi between Keokuk, Iowa, and Hamilton, Illinois. A dam nearly a mile long—with 300,000 horse power and costing upward of $25,000,000 to build.

Governors of several States, famous orators and great statesmen, civil engineers from far corners of the civilized world, met and paid tribute to an achievement regarding which articles have been printed in every language except the Chinese.

While bands played, flags waved, people cheered and the rest of the world shared in the joy of the new conquest, few realized the source from which it sprang; few realized that an unconscious tribute was being paid to the power of the little "Want Ad."

For 'twas a little "Want Ad" that made possible the Keokuk Dam. 'Twas a little "Want Ad" that first caught the eye of Hugh L. Cooper, the man who raised the money, who outlined the plans, who devised the machinery, who directed the work of this wizardry of the twentieth century.

Think of it! The world's mightiest dam—harnessing
"The Father of Waters"—growing from A LITTLE
"WANT AD."

The story is simple.

The little "Want Ad" in question exploited the opportunity of promoting and erecting what is today the Keokuk Dam.

It attracted the attention of Hugh L. Cooper—the man who put the bit and curb on Niagara. Perhaps the one man in the world who was capable of carrying the enormous task to completion.

Correspondence followed and Mr. Cooper pledged himself to the project. Plans were drawn and capital interested—and the actual work of construction started some three years ago.

The result stands today as one of the world's greatest power plants—a dam of indomitable strength—a bulwark of concrete and steel, built to withstand the ravages of the elements, fortified against raging torrents and destructive ice flotillas, proof almost against the gnawing tooth of time itself.

And all brought about through the magic of a little "Want Ad"—a few lines which have shaped the destiny of a commonwealth, which have brought heat and light and power to more than 1,500,000 people.

This story has a moral:

It reflects a great truth, which says "the importance of the small thing is great after all."

The little "Want Ad" is almost superhuman in its method of search. It opens the doors of homes, enters private offices, invades remote regions, reaches people at all times, in all places—and gets an audience with those directly or indirectly interested.

Whether it be a situation that seeks a certain man or a man who seeks a certain situation; whether a man for a master engineering project or an ordinary position to be filled—it matters not how large or how small the undertaking—the little "Want Ad" seldom fails of its mission.

Much, however, depends upon the introduction of the little "Want Ad." Always it is accredited in the same manner—and to the same extent—as the publication in which it appears.

It must be a publication which possesses merit that claims the consideration of a great number of people. A publication which is read and responded to by men and women who are progressive enough not to be bound by precedent and one which carries conviction of truth to its readers always—a publication like the Boston American with a representative showing of "Want Ads," as you will see by glancing over today's American "Want Ad" section.

In the Boston American "Want Ads" have a potency that is all their own—a force which is yours to employ whenever need arises.

PROSPERITY IS GROWING, SAY BUSINESS MEN

Washington and Wall Street have long been at odds as to whether or not the country is in a state of depression. The business men, however, are unanimous in their opinion. They say that the country is in a state of prosperity and that the business is growing.

George J. Whelan, founder of the United Glass Stores, when selling his business, said: "I cannot make two barrels out of one bushel of wheat, but I can make two barrels out of one bushel of wheat. The country is in a state of prosperity and the business is growing."

P. S. Wheeler, president of the American Glass Bottle Manufacturers Association, said: "The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity. The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity."

William A. Warburton, president of the National Glass Bottle Manufacturers Association, said: "The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity. The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity."

Edward B. Butler, of Butler Bros., said: "The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity. The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity."

Brother Chamberlain, of the Boston Chamberlain, said: "The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity. The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity."

Brother Hittcock, of the Boston Hittcock, said: "The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity. The business is growing and the country is in a state of prosperity."

BOSTON AMERICAN

59 AND 52 SUMMIT ST. BOSTON. JANUARY 17, 1914.

A Sane Business Man's Way to Really Help Those Who Need Help

We hear much these days of profit sharing, and much more about helping the poor. Talk about CHARITY is often so cheap as to be worse than superficial.

Actual PROFIT SHARING, by helping those who need help, is rare enough to call for conspicuous notice in the editorial columns of any newspaper.

The AMERICAN desires to draw attention to a movement inaugurated right here in Boston by Louis K. Liggett, president of Liggett's drug stores. The plan is new, but it has been told in a way that has not given it all the prominence it deserves. Here is the announcement from the Liggett stores:

Our present to the people of Boston this year is FREE PRESCRIPTIONS TO THE WORTHY POOR!

Any reputable physician is authorized to send any worthy poor person to our stores for prescriptions, and we agree to fill them without cost. Nothing is required but a note from the physician, or his professional card, or on his prescription blank, that the patient is entitled to the assistance.

In this manner we aim to contribute our share toward the public good, instead of paying out an even smaller amount in the countless requests for contributions to programs, fairs, bazaars, among which we cannot discriminate.

Let no worthy man, woman or child suffer a moment for want of proper medicine when required.

LOUIS K. LIGGETT, President.

The AMERICAN gives this official notice of Mr. Liggett's widest publicity. He is doing something practical in the right way. He is helping those who are unable to help themselves.

It will splendidly supplement the work of those worthy physicians, who, rich in kindness though often poor in purse, give freely of their skill to the poor and begrudge nothing but their inability to provide medicines as well.

It will save many lives and help to hasten the day when there shall be no pain.

It is a unique and altogether practical example of how help can be extended to the deserving without the use of the sometimes offensive word CHARITY.

The Panama Canal Will Settle the So-Called "Yellow Peril"

Big Ships from Europe to Our Pacific Coast Will Bring the White Labor

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

The biggest thing that has happened on this planet was the final dynamic charge that allowed the waters of the Pacific to run into the Panama Canal—uniting two oceans.

Man's task on this earth is THE CONQUEST AND CULTIVATION OF THE PLANET. He was put here to develop the earth and make it beautiful, as a gardener is put into a garden to make the garden beautiful.

Uniting the two oceans is a work worthy of mankind, something to be proud of. Compared to that dynamic blast uniting the Pacific and the Atlantic, and cutting thousands of miles from the journey between New York and San Francisco, all the world's battles are as trifles, historically.

The Panama Canal will do for this country many things. Among others it will settle the so-called "yellow peril." Chinese, Japanese and other yellow men have been used on the Western coast because white men were lacking.

The long trip around Cape Horn from Europe was not to be thought of for immigrant ships, and the journey of three thousand miles by rail across the continent was too expensive.

All the white labor from Europe has settled along the Eastern coast or east of the Rocky Mountains.

Now, with the canal opened, great immigrant ships will arrive at San Francisco and the other coast ports, coming direct from Europe through the canal.

Good working men and working women—of whom this nation still needs many tens of millions—will know that opportunity is on the Western coast—and they will go there DIRECT.

The Chinese is a good worker, and the Japanese is a marvel of cunning and efficiency—when he is inclined to work.

But no yellow man can stand on equal terms with a white man in a white man's country. Europe will supply the white men and the white women—and they will supply the white population of the future.

The jobs will be filled, the labor that the country needs will be supplied and the Asiatics will remain in Asia, settling their own affairs—and quite busily occupied looking after each other.

The yellow men's fight will have trouble for white men—bad and brutal, but true.

Man accomplishes his task, and finds that in accomplishing it he settles many problems not thought of when the work began. The Panama Canal will prove that in many ways.

Expert Testimony

By REV. C. H. PARKHURST

SO long as human nature remains the same, expert testimony cannot be relied upon to contribute to a unanimous verdict either of conviction or of acquittal. Especially must this be the case when such testimony is employed both by the prosecution and the defense. Its natural effect in such cases will be to produce confusion of mind and divergence of judgment, although it should be said that so much criticism has been passed upon that kind of evidence that with the average intelligent juror it probably counts for less and less either for the defendant or against him. The expert that is called by the prosecution is called by the defense and will in all likelihood testify for the prosecution, and vice versa of the one called for the defense.

There may be no conscious dishonesty on either side, but it is known to counsel what his expert witness will testify before he is put on the stand, and the average man will serve the man who pays him.

There is a way, however, by which all the advantages of expert testimony can be secured and all its disadvantages eliminated; and that can be accomplished by the appointment of a standing board of experts, whose members shall be subject at all times to summons from the court—not from counsel for the defense, but from the court—the entire matter being thus kept in the control of the presiding judge and the ex parte feature, to that extent, ruled out.

Such an arrangement would make available the wisdom of those best fitted to pass judgment upon questions like sanity, a wisdom whose value is, under present conditions, largely sacrificed.

In-Shoots

It is often difficult to tell whether a story is good or bad until it has been taken.

When a man becomes famous all the lauders in his neighborhood begin to dig up and look around.

There is a period in the life of every man when he would like to be an actor or a drug squire.

When the human door mat (that he is likely to be as sore as a bare leg) will.

Are All Blondes Trouble Makers?

We Don't Say So, We Merely Ask, but There Is a Story in the Sunday AMERICAN Which Ought to INTEREST All Blondes and Perhaps Will PLEASE All Brunettes

Surprising evidence is offered to prove that fair-haired women are to blame for most of the unhappiness which wreck homes and divorces husbands and wives, in a most interesting article in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN, in which will also be found the following big exclusive features:

The Relentless Thaw Hoodoo:

The history of the remarkable blight of the "Thaw Hoodoo," which up to date has brought violent death, suicide, matrimonial troubles, business disaster and personal disgrace to fifty of the leading actors in the famous Thaw case.

Oriental Sketches By the Famous Bakst:

A fascinating page, giving some of the newest and best examples of the flowing lines and gorgeous combinations of color which make this artist's work so popular.

Whimsical Mrs. Gouraud's Latest Caprice:

How the much-married American millionaire, who is always surprising us with her eccentricities, now plans to try her luck with a Russian "Prince" for a husband.

Is Your Cat or Dog Rheumatic?

Many animals suffer from rheumatism just as human beings do and a famous veterinary surgeon has discovered a new way of curing them by means of electric baths.

Trying to Stop the 'Voodoo' Human Sacrifices in Cuba:

How it is hoped that the arrest of two voodoo priests after the weird ceremonies which followed the murder of a little white girl will put an end to this revolting superstition.

How Barber Shops Can Be Made Safe and Sanitary:

Science's discovery that many diseases of the skin and scalp are caught at the barber's and the hairdresser's emphasizes the need of stringent legislation for the prevention of unsanitary practices which are making us bald and are ruining our complexion.

How Saturn's Rings Affect Our Weather:

Professor Turner puts forward the interesting new theory that it is whirling masses of meteorites that make sunspots and fill the universe with storm-producing electricity.

How the Turkey Is Losing Its White Meat:

The bird's legs are getting bigger and tougher and its breast muscles, where the best meat is found, smaller, because we won't let it fly.

Near-Spring Furs and Near-Nothing Lingerie:

How to Word Your Invitations and Answers:

Helpful advice about some of the points of etiquette by Mrs. Frank Learned, the author of "The Etiquette of New York Today."

Why You Really Do Burn With Fever:

An interesting explanation of what causes sudden changes in the body's temperature and why you often have a severe chill just before a high fever begins to consume your tissues.

A—"Unknown, but estimates of geologists have been made ranging from 100,000 to 250,000 years, none less than 100,000. Here's the account given by the London News: "Skull at Piltdown. Sussex, England, discovered by C. Dawson. Eoanthropus Dawsoni though a man of comparatively low intelligence, was still far more gifted in the matter of brain than any ape yet discovered; yet the capacity of his brain was far less than that of the famous fossil man of Spy and La Chapelle-Aux-Bois, who, it is to be noted, had a brain-case larger than that of the average modern civilized man, showing that during the last 100,000 years or so we have diminished rather than increased in brain power; and the signs of the times seem to indicate that we are still on the down grade."

But this primitive man of France may not have been the possessor of a brain as big as a modern cultured one so that it can think consecutively without break on one abstract subject for from one to forty hours. This is the master mind of the modern mathematical world are now doing.

I have recently read a most impressive article, in a magazine, but forgot to note the name of the author, which stated that low races of man, such as aborigines, pygmies, etc. are fallen and degraded remnants of once great races of man; dying out now from prehistoric excesses. There is no scientific proof, but the article was fascinating and thoughtful.

The Eternal Mind in Us

From EDWIN MAREHAM

RALPH WALDO TRINE, in his latest and best book, "The New Alchemy of Life," offers a simple and stirring view of Henri Bergson, the French philosopher.

"Bergson is a great force of our generation is Henri Bergson with his brilliant searching intellect guided always by a simple, rugged heart. It was of him that William James said: 'Open Bergson and new horizons open on every page you read. It tells of reality itself instead of reiterating what dusty-minded professors have written about what other previous professors have thought. Nothing of Bergson is shop worn or at second hand.'"

"Bergson finds that there is a primal life-force of which we are partakers, a force that transcends mind, the senses, the microscope, germ, cells, tissues; that we have within us a power which he calls the Power of Intuition, a power above intellect and enabling us at times to see into the very nature of life and existence; that the possession of this power enables us to have an active part in our own enfoldment or evolution; that this life-force is continually molding and matter and form to its own use, and that our vision is continually going on and bringing something ever new into existence."

"Everything," he says, "that exists is the manifestation of a life-force, the vital which is perpetually recreating itself. This is the 'creative evolution' of which I have written. There is in each of us a particle of life-force which shows intellect just as much as it shows other faculties. We grow and progress because the life-force wills that we should do so."

"The life-force which we find in every living thing must have come from a source. That source is unceasing life, action, freedom—you may call it God. It must always have existed, for otherwise there would have been nothing. And nothing is unthinkable. According to my views, the original source always existed in time, but out of space."

"Closely allied to this fundamental principle of Bergson's philosophy is this recent utterance of Thomas Merton, Editor of the Catholic Review, in getting nearer and nearer the great Great Causation, and through everything there is the play of an Eternal Mind."
